Community Supervision ^{report} Statuses (Continued):

Interstate Commission for Adult Offender Supervision (ICOTS):

The Interstate Commission for Adult Offender Supervision (ICAOS) is charged with overseeing the day-to-day operations of the ICAOS, a formal agreement between member states that seeks to promote public safety by systematically controlling the interstate movement of certain adult offenders. Through this contract, Vermont can send individuals for out-of-state supervision and other states can send individuals to Vermont for supervision. The latter individuals will be categorized by their supervision type (e.g., probation, parole) in this report

Probation:

An individual found guilty of a crime upon verdict or plea, is released by the court without confinement, subject to the conditions and supervision by the Commissioner of Corrections. This is a contract between the individual and the court, to abide by conditions in return for the court not imposing a sentence of confinement. Violation of this sanction requires due process, with a court hearing, counsel, and preponderance of evidence. Within the probation sanction is the reparative probation program, which allows citizens on community panels to determine the quality of restitution made to the victim and repair of harm to the community, consistent with 28 VSA Chapter 12

Absconder:

When an individual on a community supervision status has unknown whereabouts, they are considered an absconder. The Parole Board, Courts, or the Commissioner issues an arrest warrant. The Department of Public Safety is responsible for fulfilling the arrest warrant and returning the individual to the VT DOC
